METRICS TO ASSESS SATISFACTION AND RECOMMENDATION

OVERALL SATISFACTION INDEX (0 to 100)

The Overall Satisfaction Index considers nurses' satisfaction on all the key employment areas. The overall satisfaction score of this study is 52. This is considered as an average satisfaction level and can be improved.

NET PROMOTER SCORE (-100 to 100)

This is a standardized metric that benchmarks how likely the Filipino nurses are to recommend their job to others (family & friends) across institutions within the health sector. In this study, the NPS score is -49 which translates in a significant number of detractors.

THEMATIC ANALYSIS

What do Filipino nurses have to say?

A insights deep dive into their working environment in Germany.

IMPROVEMENT SUGGESTIONS BY FILIPINO NURSES

➤ What can my organization do better, in order to make this a great place to work for foreign professionals?

➤ Majority of respondents spoke about problems particularly about Racism & Discrimination which is aggravated with the lack of cultural awareness and language proficiency. Investing in Intercultural training and Language training will significantly improve the situation for foreign nurses.

➤ Hosting motivational team building activities with the goal of showing recognition and valuing nurses' work & experience will greatly increase satisfaction levels and help with workplace integration and belonging.

➤ Improving work conditions by managing workload distribution and staffing will increase satisfaction. Logically, improving salary and benefits would also help but only in the short-term. Long-term improvements must be put in place for sustainable results.

IMPROVEMENT SUGGESTIONS BY FILIPINO NURSES

➤ What can my organization do better, in order to make this a great place to work for foreign professionals?

IMPROVE WORK ENVIRONMENT (46%)

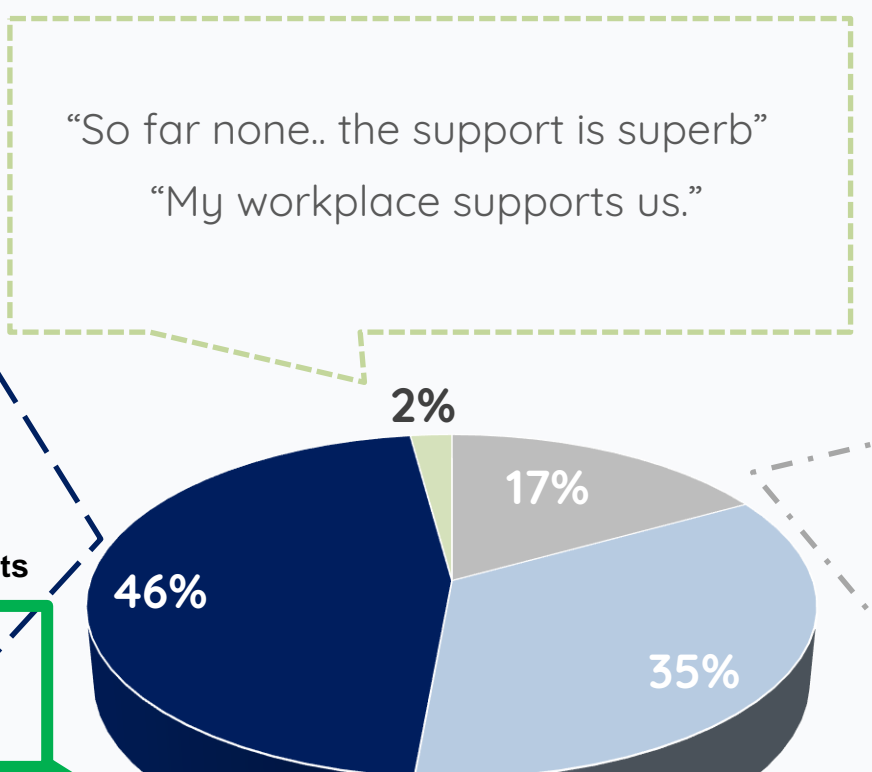

“Racial discrimination especially Nurses from Asian countries or from 3rd world countries. They think that our standards and level of knowledge and skills in relation to nursing is far low compared to their local standards. But in the long run when we can understand and speak fluent Deutsch, they then realized that we Filipinos are far more skilled, knowledgeable as nurses compared to them. Not to mention our professionalism and our attitude towards our patient is clearly above and beyond their expectations.”

“Geduldig sein und keine beleidigende wörter wenn mann nicht gut sprechen kann.“

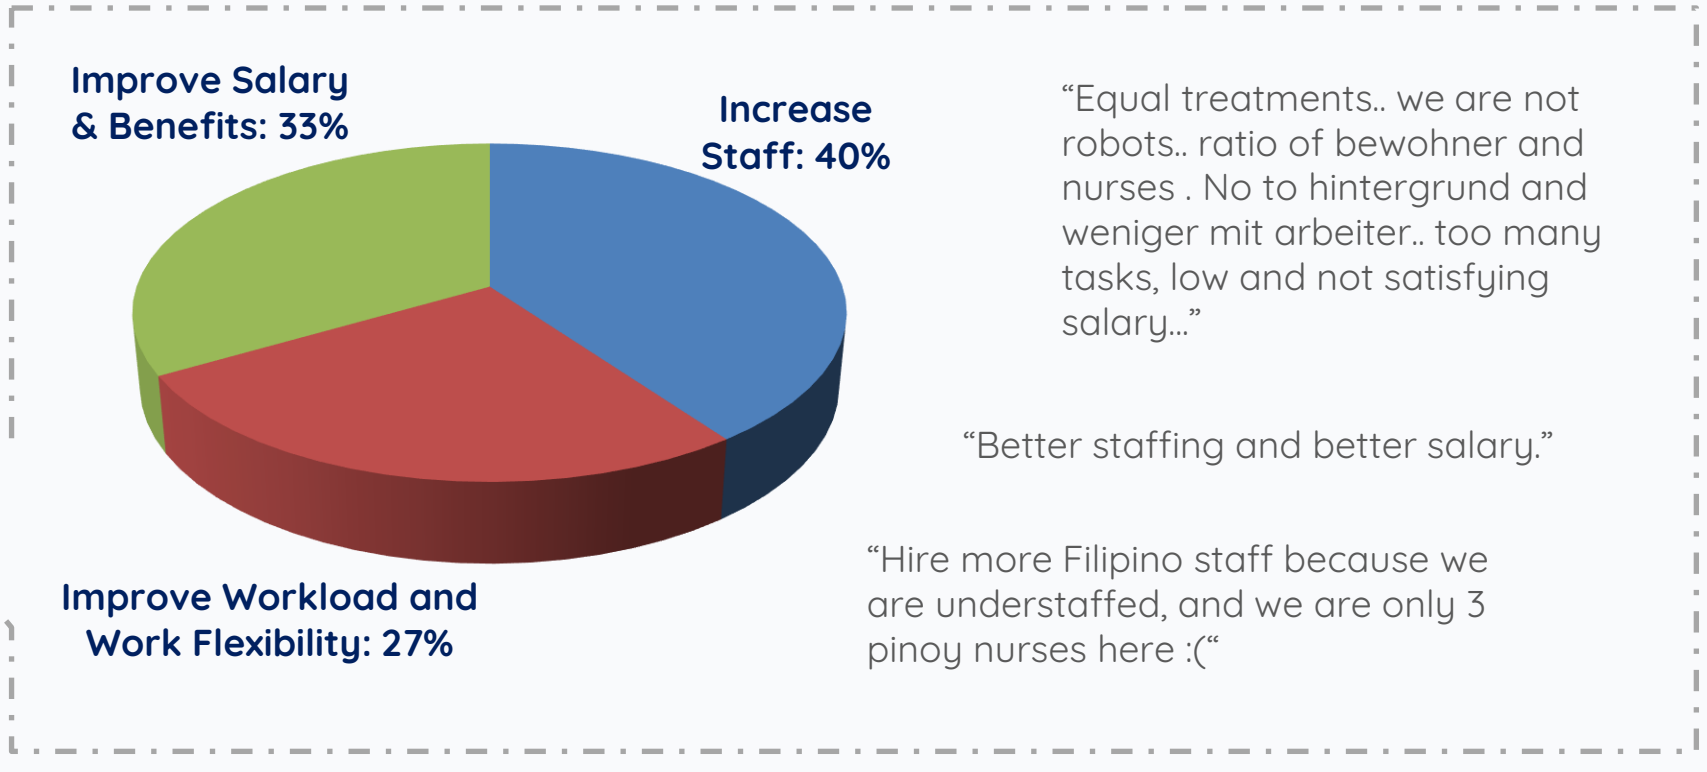

“They must try to understand that newly hired foreigners need some adjustments and mentorship to be able to show more of our skills as nurses”

ALREADY SATISFIED (2%)

“So far none.. the support is superb”
“My workplace supports us.”

IMPROVE WORK CONDITIONS (17%)

“Equal treatments.. we are not robots.. ratio of bewohner and nurses . No to hintergrund and weniger mit arbeiter.. too many tasks, low and not satisfying salary...”

“Better staffing and better salary.”

“Hire more Filipino staff because we are understaffed, and we are only 3 pinoy nurses here :(“

IMPROVE TRAINING & ORIENTATION (35%)

“They need to provide more Information about work culture before deployment”

“There should be a designated or a support person who can explain to us correctly our rules and responsibilities in work, how German Healthcare system work, and our rights as an employee”

“Provide nurses proper and timely Einarbeitung. Continue Fortbildung for each Nurses.”

Nb: % are based on total number of mentions (n=142). It is possible for respondents to mention several topics when answering the question. Each pie is recomputed to show 100% for each category.

Overall Job Satisfaction

- “A survey of the job satisfaction of Filipino nurses working in the UK” – by Anna Reyes and Gladys Martir, 2022 (Data from 2017) [1]
 - 71% of Filipino nurses working in the UK were satisfied – most of them moderately satisfied which could be considered slightly higher than the satisfaction level in our study of nurses in Germany.

- “Filipino Nurses in the United States: Recruitment, Retention, Occupational Stress, and Job Satisfaction” – by Arlene N. Hayne, Jonathan Davis, 2009 [2]
 - This study showed higher satisfaction rate amongst Filipino nurses in the US. The language could possibly ease the integration barrier.
- “Job satisfaction and acculturation among Filipino registered nurses” – by Emerson E. Ea ,Mary Quinn Griffin, Nora L’Eplattenier, and Joyce J. Fitzpatrick, 2008 [3]
 - This study showed moderate level of satisfaction amongst Filipino nurses in the US. The nuance could be due to employment differences between states.

- “Level Of Job Satisfaction Of Filipino Nurses In Attendo Oy, Finland” – by Jimeno, Arthur P., 2019 [4]
 - In this study conducted amongst Filipino nurses in Finland, satisfaction is also on an average level with 16% dissatisfied and 48% of respondents answering “Neutral” when asked about their overall satisfaction. This could be considered better as the satisfaction level in our study.

- “A Comparison of Job Satisfaction among Filipino Nurses Employed in the Philippines and Overseas” – Ruth Shane E. Legaspi, 2019 [5]
 - In this study which compares satisfaction between locally employed and overseas Filipinos nurses, satisfaction of overseas nurses (working in various countries but mostly in the middle east) is at an average level. This study also reveals that satisfaction amongst overseas nurses is lower than locally employed nurses.

SUMMARY AND RECOMMENDATIONS

CONCLUSIONS

CONCLUSION

KEY TAKEAWAYS

Overall satisfaction of Filipino nurses as measured using Employee Net Promoter Score (-49) is poor.

This study reveals that the main obstacles and issues that Filipino nurses face in Germany are:

- 1. The lack of recognition of their qualification and experience
 - Qualifications and previous experiences in other countries are not recognized nor properly valued.
- 2. They tend to feel discriminated and disrespected
 - Over 22% of respondents have mentioned racism or discrimination as an area of improvement.
- 3. Feeling isolated, not having someone they trust and that they could share their experience / difficulties with.
- 4. Workload for certain nurses (48%) is heavy, although 52% did say that they enjoy their leisure time when off duty.

On a positive note:

- 1. Particularly high satisfaction is observed for support in passing the professional recognition (berufliche Anerkennung).

Based on our secondary research, we observed that:

- 1. Overall satisfaction is likely to be slightly lower in countries such as Germany or Finland where English is a secondary language when compared to primarily English-speaking countries such as the United Kingdom or the United States.
- 2. Integration is even harder in Germany due to communication difficulties (German being quite different from Filipinos' mother tongue - Tagalog or English) as well as cultural work practices that are significantly different (separate over collective).

CONCLUSION

RECOMMENDATIONS

To improve Overall Satisfaction of Filipino nurses and improve eNPS score, organizations should focus on the following:

- 1. Improving language support and training in order to allow foreign nurses to rapidly improve their German proficiency. This will likely result in:
 - Better communication thus the capacity to express themselves better and apply their knowledge more accurately.
 - More interaction between colleagues and therefore reducing isolation, improving camaraderie and belonging.
- 2. Intercultural training and reinforcing cultural awareness within the organization
 - Integrate cultural training / orientation for new foreign nurses to aid them in integration.
 - Train local workers (particularly managers) about cross-cultural management and sensitivity training towards foreign nurses.
- 3. Maintaining continuous support to Filipino nurses in their professional recognition examinations (berufliche Anerkennung) is key.
